Powerhouse speaker and popular university instructor Christina Kerley—widely known as “CK”—has thrived at the forefront of technological change for three decades. After guiding thousands of Fortune 500 executives through a constant barrage of digital revolutions, CK is now focused on her latest mission: helping companies and career professionals reinvent for lasting relevance in the AI-fueled future.

Renowned for her boundless energy and dynamic stage presence, CK has captivated audiences at Verizon, Microsoft, Coca-Cola, Amazon, Johnson & Johnson, Nestlé, ADP, The United Nations, and many more.

A standout favorite at Rutgers Business School for Executive Education, CK has been instructing both online and in-person classes for 15 years. She currently teaches on The Future Of Work, AI’s Reinvention Revolution, And Next-Gen AI.

Gifted at inspiring people to embrace change, CK proves that the key to technological transformation is human transformation. After all, people—not machines—are the true drivers of meaningful change (and successful AI transitions are ultimately more personal than technical).
