

THE FUTURE WEB

This session focuses on The Future Web, and how it will profoundly (and permanently!) change the ways that we access, interact with, and experience all of our digital content.

Acting as a new “OS for the Web,” Blockchain technology will de-centralize and dis-intermediate EVERYTHING—entire industries, companies, currencies, contracts, and creative assets (NFTs).

Much more than a modernization, Web 3 will continue its swell into a massive techno-cultural movement. But Web 3’s greatest legacy will be placing control of data where it belongs: back into the hands of consumers, creators, and customers.

No longer a singular destination, The Future Web will be a sweeping collection of connected environments. From the 2D Internet and the 3D Metaverse . . . across the real-world Outernet . . . to Mirrorworlds of digital twins.

Immersive technologies will be the veritable rockstars of The Future Web. A robust suite of XR tech (AR, VR, MR) will enhance the reality that we encounter at all times—whether we are online, offline, or in-between the two worlds.

Finally, AI will accelerate the arrival of The Future Web, as only through human-machine collaboration can we realize the magic of these next-gen technologies, capabilities, and connected environments.
